

Important information for applicants: teaching and learning 2021/ 22 academic year

Your student experience is at the heart of our planning. We want to provide you with a high-quality education and student experience. It is also vital we ensure the health, safety and wellbeing of our whole University community.

We are planning to provide you with a mix of significant face-to-face on-campus learning and teaching, supported by some online activity*. The amount of face-to-face on-campus activity will vary from course to course, depending on your subject.

While planning to fully open our campuses and facilities in September 2021, we must be mindful of other possibilities should government and health guidance change. Should restrictions be implemented, we may need to adjust what we can offer and the amount of on-campus activity (including learning, teaching and social activities).

Your 2021/ 22 course information was published in early March 2020. Changes have since been made to a few courses. We ask you to re-read your course details to make an informed choice about whether the course remains suitable for you.

When you register for your course, you will be asked to confirm you have read about our changes and you agree to them. It means that by choosing to continue with your application and register with us, you accept these changes and are happy to study your course with us.

We really look forward to seeing you in the next academic year. In the meantime, if you want to find out more about university life from this September and being part of our supportive and welcoming community, please visit our Welcome Hub.

*Information correct at the time of publication 02/08/2021.