People living with dementia need flexible care to maximise their independence, enabling them to respond to their changing needs at different points in time. At present, care is either limited at home or all-encompassing in an establishment.

Join us on Thursday 2nd February to hear about CASCADE and from guest speakers:

Keith Oliver, an expert-by-experience and long-term expertise as an advocate for dementia care issues.

Herlinde Dely - Flemish Expertise Centre on Dementia, and Inge Vanfraechem - Facilitator Dementia Plan Flanders, on the importance of the role of policy makers to enable change to happen and why people with dementia and their family members are listened to.

Choose one of the breakout sessions to join in an informal discussion about specific aspects of the CASCADE model of care:

- How to build/adapt existing buildings to a CASCADE based facility
- An informal session to answer questions and discuss feedback about the process and outcomes of the evaluation
- How to use technology to promote independence and how technology should be complementary to the person
- The key fundamentals of the CASCADE model of care, and how to train staff in a holistic person-centred approach
